The Guice Family⁹⁸ (Guise, Gais)

Guice family members are connected with the New Jersey Settlers through a number of marriages, the first of which appears to be that of Edwin J. Guice to Lucilla Coleman (w) Cameron, daughter of Isaiah Coleman, great-grandson of the Rev. Samuel Swayze. Later of his descendants by the names of Costley, Griffing and Mullins married Guices.

A group of the Guices came to America from Germany, among them being two brothers and their families, Christopher I and Claude. Christopher I was born in Germany 25 July 1718. About 1745 he married Margaret Plowhead who was born 19 April 1728. In America, they first settled in Pennsylvania, but apparently not long. They obtained land grants in Tennessee and moved on there. In 1770, Christopher Guice applied for a British land grant in West Florida, Mississippi Territory, as did his sons, Christopher, Jr., Jonathan and Michael. About 1776, moving as a clan, they settled on the land at Selsertown, Mississippi (706 acres) and waited for the grant to be approved which was done 10 November 1778. In 1779, Spain declared war on Great Britain. The Guice family became so involved in efforts to aid in expelling the Spanish that they were forced to flee for safety to Tennessee, except it is believed that son Michael stayed to hold the land.

On May 1, 1780, inside the cedar-post stockade of new Fort Nashborough, Tennessee, among others, Johans Frederick Stump (Stumpf) and his son Jacob affixed their signatures to the vital pages of the immortal Cumberland Compact, by which government was set up in the wilderness. That was Nashville's birth certificate. Frederick Stump was a thrifty, industrious and wealthy German who had lived on the Pennsylvania border. During the early days of the Revolution, he had commanded a company under General Marion.⁹⁹ The Stump family had come to Tennessee with General Robertson's party in 1779 and settled on White's Creek, near where Nashville now stands.

The Guice Clan arrived at Fort Nashborough in the spring of 1780, their holdings being in the neighborhood of Stump's plantation. Shortly thereafter Jonathan Guice (Gais) met Miss Anne Stump, born 29 April 1763, daughter of Frederick Stump, and with little delay, in fact that same year of 1780, he arranged to marry her. In the Davidson County, Tennessee marriages, we find also that Jacob Guice, son of Christopher, Sr. was married on 2 February 1789, in Fort Nashborough to Elizabeth Bickley, daughter of Adam Bickley. These two couples became the ancestors of many of the people listed in the Rev. Samuel Swayze line. In 1792, at least part of the "Clan" returned to their land grants in the Natchez area.

Here we quote from a letter written by Amanda Guice Armstrong, granddaughter of Jonathan Guice, Sr., dated August 21, 1902, to her nephew, T. Guice in Terrell, Texas, telling him something of his ancestry:

Dear Nephew:

I will now endeavor to answer your questions as near as my ability allows. . . I find our ancestors were originally French. They were driven out in some of the feuds there into Germany, and there stayed until they became identified with that nation of people until they moved in a colony to America in 1749¹⁰⁰ (as near as I can make out from the Bible of my great-grandfather, Christopher Guice). He was born July 25, 1718, and married Margaret Plowhead, born April 19, 1728. My grandfather was Jonathan Guice, born Dec. 30, 1746. He married Anna Stumpf, raised near Nashville, Tenn. My great-grandfather had fifteen children: Jonathan, Daniel (or David, died young), Hannah, Michael, Catherine, Priscilla, Christopher, Elizabeth, Susannah, Rachel, Daniel (stolen by Indians and never recovered by parents), Jacob, Absalom Abram, Anna and Mayrus. These all moved in a colony with one of the Kinisons (one of them having married Priscilla Guice.) . . . My grandfather was educated both in English and German. I have seen him have two Bibles—one on each side of him—on his pallet (which was a large deerskin). He read them all the time and believed every word. He was a Lutheran, was honest, intelligent and industrious. He was a carpenter by trade. When he was about thirty years old, as a colony they all moved from Pennsylvania to Tennessee (about 1776). There they all settled together and the most of them were farmers. There grandfather saw Miss Anna Stumpf, a very rich young lady living near Nashville. He courted and married her about 1780.

They all remained in Tennessee until 1792, my father Jacob was three years old, then they all took the moving spirit again, for it was that when one moved, they all moved. So they set out for the wilderness country, preemption rights or Spanish grants. My grandfather Jonathan brought his tools and a good many negroes with him and got to building houses. He had the lumber sawed with whip saws and built comfortable houses on the places where he settled. As soon ⁹⁹Col. Frederick Stump's Revolutionary War record has been approved for membership in the NSDAR.

¹⁰⁰Mrs. Armstrong states, "as near as I can make out." The John G. Guice Bible, long recognized as authority for Guice history, states that the children of Christopher I were born in Germany except the last two. The thirteenth was born in 1769—there were two later, in Tennessee. For these reasons, it appears the date of arrival in America should have been read "1769" rather than "1749." The John G. Guice Bible is owned by Miss Laura Schaefer of Port Gibson, Mississippi. The Christopher Guice Bible was lost.

as this was done, he set out to build the first cotton gin in this part of the country. Right there he lived until he died, and is buried on the same place where he raised all his children. He was I think 92 years old. "An honest man is the noblest work of God." His children were all honorable men and women and their offspring flourished all over this beloved land. . . .

Farewell,
Your Aunt
Amanda Guice Armstrong

Hallock⁹⁹

Despite oft-repeated family traditions that Peter Hallock came with twelve other heads of families to New Haven, Connecticut, in 1640, and later was the first to step on shore at a spot called Hallock's Neck on Long Island Sound, Dr. Kenn Stryker-Rodda says firmly, "His name does not occur in the records of New Haven, Connecticut or Southold." It is known that he came from England and had a son William who is found in Southold. His son John's marriage to Abigail Swayze makes the Swayze but not the Jersey Settler connection. It is his daughter Abigail's marriage to Caleb Horton which gives the Hallock genes to the Jersey Settlers.

XII. William Hallock, born England before 1620; died Mattituck, Long Island, 29 September 1684, married probably before 1640, Margaret _____, who died 9 May 1707, according to will made 10 February 1682, proved 17 October 1684.

1. John, m. Abigail Swayze, d. 1737
2. Thomas, m. Hope _____, may be the Thomas who died 19 March 1718 (Salmon)
3. Peter, m. Eliza _____, died either 7 Aug. 1701 or 9 March 1703 (Salmon)
4. William, m. Mary _____, d. 1736?
5. Mary
6. Martha
7. Sarah
8. Elizabeth, b. abt. 1642 a/c Hallock Genealogy, m. (1) _____ Harrud, possibly John Harod, by whom she had a son George; m. (2) bef. 1675, Richard Howell
9. Abigail, m. Caleb Horton

The order of birth of these children is not known, except that the five daughters are here arranged chronologically, their father having specified in his will that Thomas and Peter should each pay one of the daughters £5, one each year, starting with the eldest, Mary, and continuing to Abigail, who was to be paid five years after his death. Nothing has come to light concerning the daughters other than Elizabeth and Abigail. It is possible that they were all older than their brothers. The will disposed of his considerable properties, caring well for his wife as long as she might remain his widow, and giving substantial tracts to Thomas and Peter. John was ignored to almost the end of the lengthy docu-

⁹⁹This information about the Hallock family comes from Ancestors and Descendants of Barnabas Horton Pickle compiled by Kenn Stryker-Rodda. He lists his sources as: Southold Town Record; The Documentary History of the State of New York; (Thompson's Long Island.) History of Long Island: The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, 1870-; Moore's Index; Griffin's Journal, 1857; Adeline Horton White, The Horton Family in America, 1929; Josephine Frost, Ancestors of Welding Ring and Ida M. Mailler, 1935; Rodney MacDonough, MacDonough-Hackstaff Ancestry, 1901; Charles Hallock, Hallock Ancestry; The Hallock Genealogy, 1926; Bunker's Long Island Families; Wayland Jefferson, Southold Town. ment, because he had defected to the Quakers, but was given a small portion. This will is famous for its long diatribe against the "Quakers." William providing for the disinheritance of any who might become or marry a Quaker. The will is reprinted in full in MacDonough-Hackstaff Ancestry, pp. 324-329.

William was a prosperous farmer. On 16 September 1675 he was rated at £361.10, 3 heads (i.e., adult males) and 70 acres of land under cultivation being included in the rateables. In 1683 he was rated at £236, no details having been preserved.

All of his holdings were at Aquebogue, his land being recorded as reaching "from sea to sea." (Southold Town Records) In addition to deeding a large farm to his son-in-law, Richard Howell, 26 April 1675 (ibid, 2:222), he participated in several other land transactions of record. On 7 July 1681 he was appointed arbitrator in the dispute between Thomas Mapes, Jr. and William Wells concerning property.

XI. Abigail Hallock, born about 1645-50; died 7 April 1697; married 23 December 1665, Caleb Horton.

Abigail's death occurs in the Salmon records thus: "Caleb Horton's wife dead." The Hallock Genealogy would have her birth-date about 1656, which is obviously too late.

Harper

The Harper family of Jefferson County, Mississippi, founded by Jesse Harper (born Virginia 1734) is connected to the Jersey Settlers thus: Jesse Harper m. Martha Jones. Their daughter Martha married Buckner Darden. This couple were parents of Martha Darden who married Prosper King Montgomery, son of Alexander Montgomery and Lydia Swayze.¹⁰⁰ Jesse Harper served in the Revolutionary War as a private in Llewellyn Jones' Company, Colonel Theodrick Bland's Light Dragoons. He came to the Natchez district as early as 1794 with his wife and three children.

There was a Maria Harper among the early members of the First Mississippi Baptist church, Salem, on Coles Creek. Connection to Jesse is not verified but she could have been his wife or daughter.

Henderson

This early Mississippi family is allied with the Jersey Settlers through the marriages of Martha Jane West, daughter of Howell Forman West and Emmaline Whitney (West-Whitney-Montgomery-Justus King) to two Henderson cousins, John Waldo Henderson and Robert M. Ayres. Both were descendants of John Henderson who came to Natchez in 1787 from Grenock, Scotland.

A graduate of the University of Edinburgh as were his father and grandfather, both named William, John Henderson was appalled at the low level of education in this wilderness colony so he appealed to the legislature as soon as the territory of Mississippi was organized. (This petition is in the Kingston Chapter.) He also founded Oakland College near Rodney.

But with Covenanter blood in his veins, he was more concerned about the absolute absence of the institutional church. He set about remedying this situa-

Dear Pat,

Here is some Guice information for your files. Christopher Guice mentioned in one of your early MS lists is my ancestor. He settled first at Selsertown and then in the vicinity of Hamburg in Franklin County. Later generations moved to Jefferson, Adams, and Harrison Counties. There are still many Guice descendants in MS. One of the History professors at MS Southern is a Guice, and so are two of the top surgeons in Hattiesburg. A number of these folks live in Biloxi and there are many in New Orleans.

I think you are doing a great service by posting so many interesting MS items on the *P boards. If I can ever help, please let me know.

Best wishes,

Anthony A. Miller

Pat & Elsie, ... My what interesting lists. The only names that I notice that I can connect to the Natchez area include Captain Amos Ogden, John Lum, and possibly Walter & Thomas Scott. There is extensive coverage of Amos Ogden in Vol I of The Descendants of the Jersey Settlers of Adams Co., MS. He migrated from NY and held the Mandamus land in the vicinity of Kingston, MS. There were two Ogdens in the area early on and they were both related. There have been Ogdens in the Natchez area for years. My folks were friends with Carter Ogden and his charming wife. John Lum is the ancestor of the folks who had the feed lot in Natchez for years which is now on the Vidalia side of the River. There is a *P person in Sun City, AZ who is also a descendant of John Lum. I would guess that either Walter or Thomas Scott was the father of John Scott, who was given a deed for Natchez Lot I, Block I of the original Spanish Survey of 1792 which warned not to have any more bull fights in the side yard. After John Scott's death, Susannah Scott became Philander Smith's second wife. My parents bought this property in 1947, restored it and lived there for years.

Volumes I & II of the History of the Descendants of the Jersey Settlers Adams County Mississippi are recommended reading for anyone interested in early MS. These books have a wealth of family information, history, and extracts of Natchez Court Records as well as documents from many other sources.

Pat...The Christopher Gise (Guice) having a grant deed dated Nov 11, 1778 for 706 acres is my ancestor. He was from the Alsace region of Germany. He arrived in Philadelphia, PA on the ship Lydia in 1742. His wife Margaret Plowhead was also from Germany and they were m. in Philadelphia in 1745. This family had 13 children. There is some coverage on this family in the History of The Descendants of the Jersey Settlers Adams County, MS, and I have quite a bit of information as well. The current "official" Guice family genealogist is Julia Guice in Biloxi. She was the historian for Harrison County until she retired sometime back and she has a wealth of information. There is a Guice Family Reunion each October near Hamburg in Franklin Co., MS. If anyone has an interest in this line please let me know.

BRANCHES & TWIGS

Biloxi historian tells story of Christopher Guice family

In the 1700s, many German-speaking people came into Pennsylvania and from there fanned out to other colonies and eventually traveled to the west or south.

This was the migration route of Christopher Guice Sr., who was born in the Alsace region of Europe, then came to Pennsylvania in 1740 as a young man and married Margaret Plowhead. Some of the Guices' 13 children were born in Pennsylvania and others in North Carolina, where the family settled in the 1750s. By the early 1770s, members of the Guice family had moved on to Natchez, Miss.

The documented story of this family is told by local genealogist Julia Cook Guice in her new book, "the Christopher Guice Family in America." She outlines a five-generation genealogy of the family starting with the 1718 birth of Christopher Sr. with excellent background that places the story's characters in historic context.

Biographies on thousands of early Guices make up much of this 298-page hardcover book.

Writing of the book has culminated years of research on the family of her late husband, Wade Guice.

"I concentrated on land records, because this family moved so much," Julia Guice said.

Guice is retired from the city of Biloxi, where she served as city historian and historical preservation officer. Since her retirement, she has published books on other ancestors, Frederick Stump and John Rhodes.

"This history was compiled for the enjoyment of family members and to assist others in the future that might want to expand on this research," she said. "My joy is in research, but I have recognized that only by putting this research into book form can I share my research."

Among the families traced in the book are those that married into the Christopher Guice family, including Harmon, Kinnison, Martin and Siddon.

Transcripts of original documents, including notes from an old family Bible, add interest to this book. Included in a pocket in the book is the large family tree chart drawn by Amanda Salome "Aunt Mandy" Guice Armstrong in 1888.

Order the 300-page, hardcover book for $30 from Julia C. Guice, 126 Seal Ave., Biloxi, MS 39530. Add $5 for postage and handling. Anyone who would purchase the book for donation to a library will receive a $5 discount. State the name of the library when ordering.

FIFTH BIRTHDAY

Family Chronicle is celebrating its fifth anniversary with an information-packed September issue, complete with an index of all the articles that have been featured in the first five years of the magazine.

"This is the biggest and best issue we have had to date," publisher Halvor Moorshead said. One of the interesting features is the results of a major survey of amateur genealogists. Another is an article by Edwin Knight, a medical doctor, who says the genealogy and DNA research promises to improve the health of those with inherited diseases. Ancestral Look Alikes, the Top 20 Web sites and Ron Wild's first steps are other September features.

And where will genealogy be five years from now? Leaders in the field, such as Cindy Howells, Joe Garonzik, Lou Szucs and Robert Armstrong will give their views.

For more information, visit the magazine's Web site, www.familychronicle.com.

CAPT. ELISHA SMITH

Huey Henry Breau, P.O. Box 60700, Lafayette, LA 70596-0700 is researching Capt. Elisha Smith, who was born in 1789 in Tennessee and died in 1852 in Lafayette County, Miss. He is seeking information concerning Capt. Smith and is also tracking the family of Smith's wife, Rebecca Mackey.

Rebecca, born in Rutherford County, N.C., in 1793, died in 1865 in Lafayette County. She was the daughter of William Lewis Mackey and Elizabeth Ashbrook. Her paternal grandparents were Alexander Mackey and Susannah Lewis, who were originally from Virginia. Susannah Lewis, born in Hanover County, Va., in 1720, was the daughter of David Lewis Sr., born in 1695, and Anne "Betty" Terrell, born in 1687, both in New Kent, Va.

Smith distinguished himself in the Battle of New Orleans in the War of 1812. They had nine children. The daughters married into the Bailey, Goodwin, Moore, Alexander, Marbert and Hunter.

know where to begin searching for someone with such a common last name.

But a letter to a state legislator in whose district Smith had enlisted resulted in a newspaper story that was seen by Smith's sister. And now, nearly 50 years after a soldier's courageous actions in battle, his buddies are looking forward to a reunion Sept. 22.

It began in October 1951. The 24th Infantry Division was coming under heavy fire from North Korean forces. A tank that had pulled alongside their bunker was a target for enemy artillery.

A mortar shell landed between Smith and O.D. Shambley, injuring both and killing two others. Shambley's leg was pierced, leaving him unable to walk. Smith could barely see after shrapnel ripped through his helmet and tore back part of his scalp.

"That was a most horrible scene that I shall never forget," squad leader Billy McMullin, of Paducah, Ky., recalled in the letter. "His scalp was peeled from the back of his head and hanging over his bloody face and chest."

Still, Smith managed to help pull Shambley, of Mount Ida, Ark., back down the hill to safety.

"I wouldn't have made it by myself, without him," Shambley was just never quite that."

About five years later, McMullin, Shambley O'Connell began searching for Smith. Records showed Smith in Benson County, so he sent the letter to F. Schmidt, who forwarded the weekly Benson Farmers Press.

Deanna Berg, who was in Grand Forks, read the story in early August. She called editor Richard McMullin, Smith's son and leader, made the call.

"I knew (McMullin) away from his voice. Smith, who was sure to learn his buddies' names about him all these years. At first, Smith told me he didn't realize anything about him after the war."

"Looking back, I can see there was a difference in the way I was acting," Smith said. "Just getting my mind off the war, I was acting differently. Smith, who has a son, and six children from a career of random drywall installation."

As for his bravery on the hillside, Smith said one would have realized it. He knew his son was serious, he said, "but I was going down the hill."
